

John Muir Correspondence (PDFs)

1881-03-27

Letter from John Muir to Mother [Ann Gilrye Muir], 1881 Mar 27.

John Muir

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarlycommons.pacific.edu/muir-correspondence>

Recommended Citation

Muir, John, "Letter from John Muir to Mother [Ann Gilrye Muir], 1881 Mar 27." (1881). John Muir Correspondence (PDFs). 617.
<https://scholarlycommons.pacific.edu/muir-correspondence/617>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Scholarly Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in John Muir Correspondence (PDFs) by an authorized administrator of Scholarly Commons. For more information, please contact mgibney@pacific.edu.

here also all four in a ring - a love-ring of steadfast old lovers around this one little love. I want to carry her to you at once, but though that may not be I feel sure that you will see her before long. In the meantime dear mother send her your love & blessing & forward this letter to father that as our little darling may have his blessing also.

Louie bravely endured her sore mother pains twelve hours of them without scarce an audible groan. & has already forgotten them all in her joy.

Ever lovingly your son
 John Miller

00979

Martinez, California,
 March 27, 1881.

Dear Mother,

Our dear little baby has come to us. She was born just two days ago, March 25 at 2 O'clock in the Afternoon, eleven months & eleven days after our marriage, and we are all very happy, father, mother, grandfather, & grandmother, & I am sure that you will join in our joy.

Our darling firstborn is a tiny healthy happy daintily featured lassie not at all dull & lumpy like most of the baby goblins that I have seen. She looks about her with her bright blue eyes as steadily as if she were a year old instead of only two days. And her cheeks & brow & mouth & nose & dimpled chin are as finely modelled & composed as if she were in her ripe teens. Heaven bless her & make all her life as happy & loveful as the promise in every quarter is now.

The weather is warm & tranquil & the sun is beaming lovingly on the green hills & blossoming orchards about our home, & the Cuckoos & Linnets are singing in full springtime choruses. How beautiful the world is, & how beautiful is the time of the coming of our little love. You remember that it was bloomtime of the year when we were married, & our little bloom bud baby has arrived in the midst of the richest bloom of the orchards. The cherry trees in particular are one mass of white petals looking as if laden with fleecy snow, while the purple & rose flowers of the quince & peach & apple trees, & the white of the plum is hardly less showy & lavishly abundant.

A happier pair of grandparents than the two Strentzels never was since the beginning of the baby begetting period on earth. How glad we would be to have here Miss Grandmother & Father